

Interview Bio/Intro for Author K. Sean Buvala

Author of

"DaddyTeller: How to be a Hero to Your Kids and Teach Them What's Really Important by Telling Them One Story at a Time."

Pronunciation of Sean's name.

"Sean" is pronounced as "Shawn"

"Buvala" is pronounced as "Buh VAH La" with the "a" pronounced with the soft "A" sound.

About the Author:

Sean Buvala is the father of four young-adult children and the author of a growing pile of books for adults and kids, including the parent-supporting "DaddyTeller" book. He is a full-time storyteller who has told and taught throughout the United States since 1985. He is the director of the storytelling resource site of Storyteller.net. A recipient of the National Storytelling Network's Oracle Award, Sean speaks to audiences of all types, helping them to understand and apply the power of storytelling in every aspect of their lives, from executives in the corporate boardroom to parents in their children's bedroom. You can learn more at daddyteller dot com.

More Information is available at <http://www.daddyteller.com/mediakit>

Contact

Sean Buvala

1.623.298-4548

Twitter: @daddyteller

Facebook.com/daddyteller

staff@daddyteller.com